350 years of tradition

Nihonmatsu furniture has a long history, beginning as one of the products of a major castle renovation in the 17th century.

Since then, encouraged by successive feudal lords, it has become a highly artistic piece of furniture for the castle, and has been passed down to the present day.

Craftsmanship of Tradition

Nihonmatsu Traditional Furniture is crafted using excellent techniques passed down through a long history, with time-honored methods. The quality and beauty that can only be achieved through handcrafting shine through. By following the entire process, from cutting the wood to assembling the pieces, a highly refined chest of drawers is created.

Tradition and Modernity

In addition to traditional furniture, modern versions that incorporate contemporary sensibilities while preserving the functionality of Japanese furniture are perfect not only for Japanese rooms but also for living rooms and other Western-style spaces.
